BAER WINS BY SMALL MARGIN OVER BURTNES

LEAGUE CANDIDATE TAKES ALL BUT TWO COUNTIES IN CONGRESSIONAL CONTEST

2,000 VOTES TO GOOD

400 Out of 547 Precincts Give Cartoonist Safe Lead Over Republican Nominee

SMALL VOTE GENERAL THROUGHOUT DISTRICT

Circus, Bad Weather and Other Factors Interfere—Talk of Contesting Result

John M. Baer, the Nonpartisan candidate, was elected to congress in the special election called by Governor Lynn J. Frazier to elect a successor to the late H. T. Helgeson, according to nearly complete unofficial returns compiled here today, by a majority of 1,493 over his republican opponent, O. B. Burtness, of Grand Forks. Four hundred precincts reported out of the total of 547 in the 13 counties gave the following at noon today: Baer, Nonpartisan . . . 9,023 Burtness, republican . . . 7,530 Bangs, democrat . . . 2,698 The district is normally republican. Baer carried 11 counties, according to the unofficial reports, losing only two, Grand Forks by a majority of five votes, and Ramsey county.

The voting was very light in all 13 counties, due it was said, on account of the heavy rain and in one instance to a circus, which visited Devils Lake, in Ramsey county. A feature of the voting was the victory by the Nonpartisan candidate in Cass and Richland counties, which were lost last year in the primary election by heavy pluralities. The incomplete returns from these two counties show Baer in the lead by a small majority, with the rural districts still to be heard from. Baer has polled the heaviest votes in the rural districts. Conservative estimates place Baer's election over Burtness by a majority of 2,000.

League Vote Falls Off. A falling off in the league vote as compared with that polled by Lynn J. Frazier, last November, is indicated in practically every county from which reports have been received. In Cass, 32 out of 70 precincts, including the city of Fargo and representing more than half of the county, gave Baer 1,005 votes, while the entire county last fall gave Frazier 4,495. Grand Forks county complete gave Baer 1,332, as against 3,294 for Frazier last fall, and the vote of Baer, Burtness and Bangs combined in that county exceeds by only 409 Frazier's total. Yesterday Grand Forks cast 3,694 ballots for congress, while last November it cast 8,751 for governor. Trail county complete gave Baer 987 as compared with 1,832 for Frazier. The combined vote for the three candidates was smaller than Frazier's vote last fall. In Pembina 38 out of 39 precincts gave Baer 874, while Frazier last November pulled 2,251 votes out of this county.

Not Much Consolation. There is little consolation for the league in Baer's victory. Should the league congressman total 16,000 votes, which does not seem probable, it will mean a loss of 12,000, or more than 40 per cent. Baer will not approximate the vote of Henry T. Helgeson. Allowing Baer 2,000 votes in Cass county, he will still be far behind Helgeson's 3,224. Baer's total in Grand Forks, 1,332, does not compare at all favorably with the 2,369 cast for Helgeson last November. In Trail county Helgeson's vote was 1,600, as against 987 given Baer yesterday.

Bangs' Weakness Surprise. The weakness of George A. Bangs was the one great surprise of the election. In no county which has reported complete returns is Bangs' vote 50 per cent as large as a year ago, when he opposed Helgeson. There is an indication that conservatives of both parties endeavored to concentrate on Burtness, and certain proof that had Burtness alone opposed Baer, the republican would have been an easy winner. Trail county, which last November gave Bangs 355, yesterday granted him a scant 76. Bangs' own home cut him down from 2,225 last November, to 735 yesterday. Pembina reduced Bangs' allowance from 1,121 last November, to 407 yesterday on face of incomplete returns.

The Stay-at-Home Vote. In questionably it was the great stay-at-home vote which yesterday defeated O. B. Burtness. It is safe to conclude that the league's whirlwind campaign was successful in getting out a large percentage of league voters. There follows the natural assumption that the stay-at-homes were republicans or democrats who either did not approve of their candidates or were not sufficiently interested to go to the poll. When the republicans in a losing year with a candi-

League Puts Baer Over

Baer was born on a farm near Black Creek, Wis., moved to Beach, N. D., after being graduated from college. After Wilson's first election he was appointed postmaster. Between handing out letters and sorting mail Baer found time to draw pictures. Such his pictures were good enough for Jim Jam Jones. When the Nonpartisan league was organized, Baer drew cartoons for the league's weekly paper. He created a character that made a hit with the farmers, H. T. Helgeson. That picture alone is said to have made thousands of votes for the farmers' candidates in the North Dakota election last fall. Baer stumped his district, drawing pictures for his crowds, talking little. He is a successor to the late Congressman Helgeson. Baer's election marks the entrance into national politics of the Nonpartisan league, which has over 100,000 members, all farmers, in the North-west and Middle West states.

I. W. W. MEMBERS TURNED BACK BY ARMED POSSE

Citizens Meet Car and Cause Agitators to Return Without Delay

PRISONERS ACTIVE IN ARIZONA COPPER STRIKE

Kingman Ariz., July 11—Sixty-three men deported from Jerome yesterday as Industrial Workers of the World, active in the strike there, appeared here today from Needles, and armed citizens met the car in which they were prisoners and caused its return on the next eastbound train. Some of the men said they had been victims of unfortunate circumstances in the clash between the organization and mine operators.

Twenty of the men escaped from the armed forces of the guard which took them to the shop of the Needles Mining company. The town is being patrolled by the home guard.

SOME ESCAPE.

Needles Cal., July 11—Citizens armed with shotguns received their 60 men, mostly Industrial Workers of the World, on their arrival here today from Jerome Ariz. whence they had been deported. A woman in the party escaped, and search was instituted for her. Two men also got away. They were told they would have to return to Arizona.

No Motive Can Be Ascribed for Self-Murder

Verdon, S. D., July 11—No motive is known for the suicide of Miss Stella Phillips, who killed herself with a .38 revolver bullet through the heart. She had been living with a sister between here and Conda.

CAPITAL AND LABOR UNITE ON THE FARM

For First Time in History of American Agriculture Wage Agreement Is Sought

TOWNLEY AND HAGAN VOUCH FOR CONTRACT

Declare Agreement League Has Sought to Make With Union Is Safe and Sane

Minot, N. D., July 11—For probably the first time in the history of America an organization of farmers representing the employing class is asked here today to ratify an agreement with a labor organization representing the farm labor of America. The proposed contract is one which a committee selected by President A. C. Townley of the Nonpartisan league has tentatively entered into with a committee representing the Agricultural Workers' union. The effect of the agreement, John N. Hagan, commissioner of agriculture and labor for North Dakota, and who headed the Nonpartisan league committee, will be to assure the North Dakota farmer an abundant supply of skilled labor, when and where it is needed; to eliminate the congregation of unemployed, which the commissioner holds has been responsible for North Dakota's I. W. W. troubles in the past, and to prevent any dispute between the farmer and the hands upon whom he is to rely for the harvesting of North Dakota's much needed bumper crops.

The Independent Farmer. "Ratification" meetings of league members, called by President Townley, similar to that in progress here today, will be held in Fargo, Valley City and Bismarck. The league's farmer membership is reported as between 40,000 and 60,000. There are 80,000 farmers in North Dakota. Whether those not in the league will be bound by the agreement, if ratified by the league, is not yet clear. "If the agreement is not acceptable to the farmer," said Commissioner Hagan today, "the department of agriculture and labor will seek to continue to supply the farmer's labor needs as it has done in the past. We have worked for weeks on this agreement. If it is approved, I believe it will go a long way toward ending harvest troubles in North Dakota. I am confident the union will live up to its contract."

Reduced Transportation. "This is the only means I know of by which we can obtain reduced transportation for farm hands," is the one means I have yet discovered of making certain of skilled hands. It is the one measure which will give us control of the harvest hand from the time he enters the state until he leaves it. It will mean absolute certainty of employment for the farm laborer when he arrives at the end of his journey, something he cannot be sure of now. It is the frequency with which farm hands are brought into this state in large numbers, attracted through unreliable reports of high wages and great need in some certain section, or sent in by irresponsible labor agencies that has caused our disturbances in the past. Men dead broke, without transportation, and with no money to pay for a meal, turned loose in a strange country, may sometimes be excused for feeling that the country which has called them owes them something."

What the Union Is. The Agricultural Workers' union has its headquarters at Kansas City. Co-operating with President A. C. Townley in negotiating the recent conference at Kansas City was Arthur LeSeuer, former socialist mayor of Minot, and an attorney who has often appeared for the I. W. W. The proceedings of the meeting were reported in full by the Industrial Worker, the official organ of the I. W. W. These facts have led some farmers to regard the Agricultural Workers' union as their old enemy, the I. W. W. in disguise. The union, however, is vouched for by President Townley and Commissioner Hagan.

Slew Sweetheart Who Scorned Him; Followed Girl to Washington

Douglas, N. D., July 11—Frank Muselman, 29, who followed Miss Opal Harmsen, aged 19, to Oroville, Wash., when the family left Douglas two years ago shot and killed his sweetheart at the home of her brother-in-law, N. A. Doyle, and made his escape. Muselman had been courting Miss Harmsen from the time she wore short skirts and she had repeatedly scorned proposals of marriage. He left here vowing he would marry her.

British Raid Turkey's Navy; Hit Goeben

Air Attack Upon Constantinople Harbor Does Considerable Damage to Fleet

WAR OFFICE IS ALSO HIT BY AVIATORS

London, July 11.—An air raid on the enemy fleet off Constantinople was announced in a statement by the British war office today. Bombs were dropped on the Turkish cruiser, Twuz Sultan Selim, formerly the German cruiser, Goeben. The extent of the damage to the vessel is not given. "Direct hits were obtained on the Goeben and on other enemy ships near here," said the official report. Big explosions took place on board and several fires were observed. The war office was also attacked and a direct hit was obtained. The enemy appeared to have been completely surprised, as until the bombs had been dropped, no anti-aircraft battery opened fire. Forces returned safely without any casualties.

Craft Capsized Last Night in Heavy Storm That Raged Over Lake

BOAT CREW HELPLESS WHEN GALE STARTS

Ortonville, Minn., July 11.—The bodies of Miss Belle Larson, a cook at a local hotel, and one of her two nieces, all of whom were among the seven victims of last night's drowning accident here, were recovered today. The nieces of Miss Larson were residents of Fargo and visiting here. Their names are not known. Hope that the remaining missing persons who were on the steamer Muskegon when it capsized last night in a squall, was abandoned today, but the heavy storm still raged on Big Stone lake and made the work of searchers and divers very difficult.

Ole Tranberg, engineer, who, with a 12-year-old boy whom he rescued, were the only survivors. In telling the story this morning said that the boat's crew did not have a chance to do anything when the squall which struck them came up.

AEROPLANES WILL END WAR SAYS WRIGHT

Dayton, O., July 11.—This is the last war, and aeroplanes will win this war, according to Orville Wright, the inventor, today. "This is the last war because aeroplanes used in great number will make war futile. No soldier and no war were so convinced from the beginning," said the inventor. "What will become of the aeroplanes after the war?" he was asked. "It will become the most popular vehicle for sport," said Wright. "Thousands of young men who will have learned to fly will be coming back. They will not sit flying. It is great fun." And while Wright was talking 400 United States fliers were training at the Wilbur Field to fly blind German planes and end "the last war."

GERMANS START DRIVE THROUGH BELGIAN LINES

City of Dunkirk Is Objective of Latest Maneuver in Flanders

FIERCE BATTLE IS STILL IN PROGRESS

Sound of Heavy Firing Can Be Heard in English Coast Towns

(By Associated Press.) Just as the Russians in the east have torn a big gap in the Austro-German lines in Galicia, captured Halicz and pressed on toward Lemberg, the Galician capital, the Germans on the western front have started a menacing offensive near the Belgian coast.

Local Effort. This movement, while it may turn out to be a local effort or something with which the British can cope, after the shock of the first thrust has been met, nevertheless indicates the possibility of the determined attempt to bend back the British flank on the Belgian coast and reach the city of Dunkirk, about 17 miles distant.

The Germans succeeded in their initial rush by leveling the defenses through an intense bombardment for 24 hours, and then attacking, last evening, over the devastated ground. The bridges across the Yser were destroyed by the heavy fire, and the sending up of reinforcements was found impossible. Thus a penetration of 100 yards deep on a front of 1,400 yards, was effected, the Germans pushing as far as the east bank of the Yser, near the North sea.

There has been no serious attempt by the Germans to break through the British front in Belgium since their two campaigns for Calais in the early months of the war. The first was checked along the Belgian front by the combined British and Belgian defenses.

Battle Still Rages. In the second battle of Ypres in the fall of 1914 the Germans sacrificed thousands of men in a terrific drive, but failed to effect a penetration. Reports from London today indicate that the battle in Belgium is still in progress. The sounds of heavy firing heard in England all day yesterday were again heard today, beginning at dawn.

In capturing Halicz, the Russians took more than 30 guns and numerous prisoners. The Russian advice to the war office state that they are continuing their advance, pursuing the retreating Austro-German forces. The Russians have reached the Posiecz-Lesliuvka-Kosmacz line in the fighting between Sunday and Tuesday the Russians took more than 10,000 prisoners, and 80 guns.

CAPTURE 1,250.

Berlin, July 11.—More than 1,250 prisoners have been taken by the German marine corps in the Yser district in Belgium, the army headquarters announced today.

TAKE 2,000 PRISONERS.

Petrograd, July 11.—In addition to capturing Halicz the Russians took 2,000 prisoners and 30 guns. They also advanced to the left bank of the Lomnica river, and pressed forward on the Borokodohan-Zolotvin front. This announcement was made by the war department today.

KORNILOFF IS NEW HERO OF RUSSIAN DRIVE

Nation Today Rings With Name of General Who Is Conquering Galicia

ONCE CAPTURED BY AUSTRIANS HE ESCAPES

Petrograd, July 11.—Russia is ringing with the name of the latest hero of the war, Lieutenant General Korniloff, victor of Galicia, whose astonishing feat first proved that the new advance is no mere flash in the pan. General Korniloff is the most daring, chivalrous and scholarly officer in the army.

From log cabin to general is the literal text of the chronicle of his career. He was born 48 years ago, the son of a poor cossack in western Siberia. When barely 13, by his own exertion, he qualified to enter the Siberian cadet corps. In the artillery school his amazing mathematical abilities brought approval from the faculty, even though suspected as being a secret revolutionary worker. In the Japanese war, Korniloff received the rank of colonel and was entrusted with a desperate mission—that of covering the retreat from Mukden of one General Kuropatkin's shattered army. It was executed with such skill he was given the St. George cross. In 1915, he repeated the Mukden feat, but was wounded and captured by the Austrians.

The enemy generals were so impressed with his accomplishments and noble bearing that the return of his sword showed greater honor to him than to their own victorious commander. His restless spirit did not long stand captivity. After a daring flight from an Austrian prison camp and astonishing adventures, he reached Russia.

CHARGE GERMAN LUTHERANS WITH AIDING ENEMY

Lincoln, Neb. July 11.—The Nebraska council of defense today issued a statement charging certain professors of the University of Nebraska and conspicuous representatives of the Lutheran church in the state with disloyal activity and passivity that has tended to give aid and comfort to Germany as an enemy.

The statement declared the business men in German communities exhibited alarming antagonism toward the Red Cross and Liberty loan and some openly threatened business reprisals against men who supported the statement. One banker was quoted as saying "I would commit suicide before taking up arms against Germany." The statement says: "Conspicuous representatives of the Lutheran church generally refused to co-operate with patriotic citizens for the support of the government."

BERNSTORFF SLATED

Former Ambassador to United States May Take Post of Foreign Minister

HOLLWEGG'S LOSSES SUPPORT OF LEADERS

Peace Party Growing in Strength As Economic Pressure Increases

Copenhagen, July 11 (Delayed).—A dispatch from Berlin to the Cologne Gazette says the retirement of Ministers Jellertich and Zimmermann will be gazetted Tuesday. According to the Tageblatt the crown council is reported to have developed an almost irreconcilable difference of opinion between Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg and a majority of Prussian ministers on questions of internal political reform.

Bernstorff Mentioned.

Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador at Washington, is mentioned in the lobby of the reichstag as a candidate to succeed Zimmermann in case of his retirement. The name of Dr. W. S. Zoff, colonial secretary is also mentioned.

The debate in the reichstag main committee yesterday, according to reports received here, was opened by Dr. G. Stresemann, national liberal, with a sharp attack on Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg's policy, particularly that of foreign affairs, which he characterized as being based on no definite consistent program. The chancellor replied by saying he was forced to look to all sides for support because the reichstag offers no stable majority. Give him this and he would be able to develop a consistent program.

The Vossische Zeitung adds that the chancellor expressed readiness and willingness to carry through necessary internal reforms.

Dualism Must Cease. Herr David, socialist, painted a picture of the difficult internal situation in Germany. He declared that the existing dualism between the government and the people must cease.

Afternoon papers yesterday generally assumed that an agreement of all parties, except conservatives and extreme socialists, had been reached by joint declaration to the reichstag on peace terms and internal reforms. This it is said, would contain a reiteration of the chancellor's announcement of August 1914, that Germany's purpose in the war was not conquest but defense, and independence of territorial integrity, expressing a readiness to conclude peace on that basis with a provision readjusting all designs aiming at economic boycott and continuance of international hostility after the war.

The declaration, according to reports, would also cover the formation of a coalition ministry with all parties and immediate reform of the Prussian franchise.

The national liberals, however, at a meeting in the evening, rejected the peace pact of the resolution. The whole matter, therefore, is in doubt again.

Washington, July 11.—Germany's latest political difficulties are regarded by officials here as due largely to internal problems and probably of a transitory nature only. The dismissal of Foreign Secretary Zimmermann Minister of Finance Helfferich or even Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg would be considered largely a surface movement, for not until the great army general staff itself is reached, it is believed, will the real crust of German militarism be broken.

The German foreign office, it was pointed out today, has served during the war merely as a means to get the leaders out of trouble. American officials agree with allied diplomats here that many of the German officials who picture so largely in the news are in fact puppets being pulled across the stage as a blind to the German people.

Their rise or fall, they say has little significance on Germany's military and foreign policies. Nevertheless, the German peace party is very active and general opposition to the unrepresentative form of government has centered attention to the extreme power of the Junker and Pan-American who are being held increasingly responsible for the ills of the country.

Austria's influence is becoming more and more insistent for a liberal peace. Austria is said to be treated most contemptuously by German officials.

NEWS OF NORTH DAKOTA AND NORTHWEST

FAITH IN FRAZIER EXPRESSED BY HEAD OF N. D. BANK MEN

J. E. Phelan Asks Confidence in Present Administration—
Speakers for Today

Fargo, N. D., July 11.—Faith in the administration of Governor Frazier was expressed by J. E. Phelan, president of the North Dakota Bankers' association, in addressing the annual convention here. President Phelan scored United States Treasurer John Burke, former governor of North Dakota, for the attitude he took a year ago in opposition to the banking interests of the country. He discussed the banker's part in the recent successful flotation of the Liberty Loan, and declared the banker in general a loyal, patriotic citizen. Last night the bankers took in a special photo-play production. This morning the convention was addressed by E. G. Quamme, president of the Federal Farm Loan Bank at St. Paul; by W. G. Edens of the Central Trust company, Chicago, president of the National Parks Highway commission, and former Governor L. R. Hanna. This afternoon Joseph Chapman, president of the Northwest National bank at Minneapolis, and Lieut. Col. Harry Gordon of the Canadian army medical corps, Winnipeg, spoke.

BURLEIGH AND WARD GAVE 75 PERCENT OF N. D. RED CROSS FUND

Two Counties With Ramsey Seem to Have Done All the Contributing in State

Bismarck with a $1 per capita subscription to the Red Cross, and Burleigh county with $2 per capita, claim the record for northwestern cities and counties in the recent Red Cross campaign. Burleigh county subscribed $32,650. "But one county in the state exceeded that total. Ward county gave $33,025, but Ward has a population of 28,065, and Burleigh but 14,157. Bismarck, with a population of 7,500 gave $23,500, or exactly $3 per capita. Minot, with 15,000 people, gave $23,119.25. Ward and Burleigh county together subscribed $65,675. The state's total was $87,547, indicating that all of the other 51 counties put together gave but $21,872, or but one-third as much as the two leading counties. This county's quota of $15,000 was more than doubled. Ward county's quota of $31,500 was exceeded by about $1,500. Inasmuch as Ramsey county claims to have raised more than $26,000, it is safe to conclude that North Dakota's Red Cross campaign was confined to the three counties of Ward, Burleigh and Ramsey.

INSURANCE POLICY IN EFFECT WHETHER PAID FOR OR TAKEN ON TICK

Important Decision Comes From Supreme Court in Case Appealed From Williams

An insurance policy in full force and effect from the date of issuance when that policy contains on its face an acknowledgment of the receipt of premium, in spite of the fact of such premium not having been paid until a later date, rules the supreme court of North Dakota in affirming the judgment of the Williams county district court in favor of Joseph M. Donahue, as administrator of the estate of Mary E. Donahue, deceased, and against the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York.

Mrs. Donahue died before actual payment had been made on the life insurance policy, and the company declined to pay. It also contended misrepresentation on the part of the insured, inasmuch as she did not state in the physical examination upon which the policy was issued that she expected to become a mother. She died in childbirth. It is anticipated the case will go to the United States supreme court.

NORTHWEST FALLS DOWN IN SUPPLY OF CANDIDATES

Far Less Than Quota for Second Training Camp Officers by Minnesota and Dakotas

Advises received at the offices of the Military Training Camps association here indicate that all of the northwestern states have fallen down in applications for the second officers' training camp, to be opened at Fort Riley, Kan., in August, and for which examinations close July 15. North Dakota, which appears to be the greatest slacker, up to midnight, July 5, had reported for examination, 58 men, while its quota is 113. South Dakota reported 96, with a quota of 109; Minnesota, with a quota of 361, reported 181; Wisconsin, whose quota is 235, reported 233.

Wharton Clay, executive secretary, appeals to the men whose applications already have gone in to enlist their friends. "When they are over in France and the Huns attacking the trench they are holding, they will look back across the Atlantic and say, 'I wish my old friend, Bill, was in command of the troops holding that next trench,'" suggests Clay. The training camps association has adopted as its slogan, "Bring in a man that you would like to fight beside," and a big drive for applicants will be made throughout the district during the next four days.

20 MILES TO NEAREST GARAGE

Suppose This Were YOU!

Suppose one of your wheels collapsed on a lonely road, miles from any garage or repair shop. Suppose you had to sit by the roadside for hours and wait for help to get home. Not a pleasant thought, is it? But that's what may happen any time if you go out with loose wheels.

SPOKITE

Swells Wood Is NOT A GLUE

Tightens and Strengthens Loose Wheels

Don't take chances! Apply Spoktiteat once to the shrunken wood of your wheels and be safe. Spoktite goes right into the wood, swells it as tight as new and keeps it tight. Simply squirt Spoktite into the cracks caused by the shrinkage and in an hour your wheels will be tight and solid. You can do this without taking the wheels off or apart.

25c Does a $2.50 Job

Instead of paying $2.50 per wheel to have them tightened, you pay only 25c for a can of Spoktite sufficient to tighten four wheels. You can do the job in an hour and be sure of having no further trouble. Mr. J. T. Irwin, Modesto, Cal., writes that his wheels were so loose he was going to throw them away. Spoktite saved him the price of a new set. Thousands of others use it with equal satisfaction.

Get Spoktite From Nearest Garage, Auto Supply or Hardware Store

What it does for others it can do for you. Save yourself from the annoyance and danger of loose wheels by getting and using Spoktite at once. If your dealer can't supply you, write our factory and we will see that you get a quantity promptly.

EXCHANGES NEEDED AS BALANCE WHEEL IN BIG NORTHWEST GRAIN TRADE

Secretary of Large Line Elevator Company Agrees With Senator Knute Nelson

That the exchanges are an imperative need of the big grain business of the northwest to act as a balance wheel for the market was a some what new view of this situation expressed today by F. C. Riebe, secretary of the Atlantic Elevator company of Minneapolis, operating 100 line elevators in North Dakota. Mr. Riebe is here with business before the state railway commission.

Elevator companies cannot afford to buy grain at top prices without some prospect of future gain. Mr. Riebe declares. The abolition of the grain exchange, he contends, will mean smaller prices for the farmer. It will also mean, says Mr. Riebe, the stretching of resources of elevator companies to the breaking point if they are expected to absorb wheat as it comes in at the rate of 100,000 bushels or more a day, with no prospect of a market for it until the law of supply and demand has time to operate.

Mr. Riebe agrees with Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota that there should be fixed a minimum and maximum price for grain, and that reasonable speculation should be permitted between these two poles, with authority vested in Mr. Hoover, on congress or in the president to call a halt whenever it appears that speculation is being indulged in to a degree harmful to either producer or consumer.

300 TELEPHONE COMPANY SLACKERS IN THE STATE

Three hundred North Dakota telephone companies have failed to file the annual report required by law. State Auditor Kostitzky stated today, indicating that this omission is intentional, indicating an effort upon the part of these companies to evade taxation, as he claims they have done in the past. He also announces that he expects to collect from each of the companies the specified fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500, and that he will seek to make the penalty as heavy as possible.

And the democrats, with their best opportunity to elect a candidate in the history of the First district, and with an old pole-horse like Bangs for their leader, would seem to have overlooked a large number of bets when they allowed his vote to dwindle in a few months from 13,256 to a total which apparently will be under 8,000.

Will Be Contested.

There is little question that Furness will contest the election of Baer on the grounds of irregularities in the issuance of Governor Frazier's call for the special election.

The constitution gives the governor the right to call a special election. It does not ascribe to him the power to dictate the method in which nominations for such elections shall be made. On the fallacious advice of Attorney General Langer, the governor took unto himself this power and in so doing deprived all of the old parties of their statutory right to nominate candidates by delegate convention and to place these candidates on

U. S. TO USE INTELLIGENCE IN EXEMPTION LISTS; NO HARD AND FAST RULES FOR WORKERS

By GILSON GARDNER.
Washington, D. C., July 11.—A lot of men will be excused from selective service who are not included in the exemptions covered by the rules just announced. No rules will be announced for these exemptions. They will come under policies to be communicated to the exemption boards by the authorities in Washington.

The farm worker must not be taken from his plow, the munitions worker from the munitions plant, the mechanic from the tractor factory, the coal miner from his coal mine, the textile blanket maker from the blanket factory, the shoemaker from his shoe machine, and so on through the list of industrial activities necessary to a successful on-going of the war.

This has been the idea justifying selective service as against the volunteer army system, yet none of these classes are covered by the so-called class exemptions. The rules given out provide that the mayor of your city, your police force, your judges and your ministers and priests and your Quakers are excused from military service. This class excuse is also extended to the husband and father of a dependent family, whose income is derived from his work of brain or hand; the son of a dependent widow, the son of aged, infirm and dependent parents, the brother of dependent children under 16 years of age.

This exempting business can't all be done by rules. The war department is going to try to get some human intelligence into the heads of the exempting boards without making general rulings or issuing blanket instructions. The most valuable work of the exemption boards is to be in the application of ordinary common sense to every set of facts brought before them. There are a million cases that cannot be covered by rules.

For instance, in the coal fields of West Virginia are 5,000 coal miners on the registration lists. Everyone of those 5,000 ought to be excused from military service and permitted to go on mining coal.

Secretary of War Baker knows this and would admit it, but probably will not make any hard and fast rule that coal miners must be exempted.

This is to permit some local exemption board to send to the trenches some young chap who is nominally a miner, but who is living on the wages of his parents and hanging around the saloon and pool room.

The exemption boards will find it easy to send young lawyers, surplus newspaper reporters, insurance agents, book agents, barkeepers, dentists, doctors, husky young bank clerks and particularly the promising and unoccupied sons of the rich.

In case any man thinks he has been unjustly treated in not being excused, he can take his appeal to the district appeal board. On the other hand, if some young chap who obviously ought to go into the service is excused as a result of political influence, the department has ordered the judge advocate general to take up such cases with the appellate board and see that the man is placed in the army.

TRAINING CAMP IS PLANNED

New York.—The United States government has leased 381 acres of land at Moomouth Park, near Long Branch, N. J., to be used as a training camp for the reserve battalions of the signal corps. This land has been acquired because of its adaptability for signal corps work, involving all kinds of signaling, telegraphy and maintenance of rapidly constructed lines of communication.

The quartermaster's department will build a large cantonment, consisting of temporary barracks, kitchen, storerooms, and everything necessary to promote the efficient training of the battalions, several of which have already been organized.

The camp will be under the direct supervision of Lieutenant Colonel Hartmann, who will be assisted by other officers of the regular army. An intensive course of instruction will be given to both the officers and men of the signal corps, preparing them for service abroad in every phase of military life necessary to perform their interesting work on the battlefield and to keep up the traditions of the signal corps.

Experienced Men Needed.

Only men with education and experience along signal corps lines, aside from the special lines mentioned, and cooks, horseshoers, farriers and mechanics are sought for this branch of service.

Lieutenant Colonel Hartmann has been given one of the biggest tasks of the day in organizing this branch of the new national army. He needs some 3,000 telegraphers—and he needs them now. Telegraphers are scarce.

The unusual number of men required cannot be taken from the commercial and railroad forces without jeopardizing the prompt transmission of government business.

Men and women who manipulated the key in former years—and they are legion—are being induced to return to the wire and release eligibles for service in the signal corps.

Brig Gen. George O. Squier, present chief signal officer, U. S. A., is the man on whose shoulders rests the big responsibility for keeping up to the mark—and, if possible, a bit beyond—the "eyes, ears and nerves" of the army; better known to the layman as the signal corps.

The signal corps has recently addressed a letter to presidents of colleges and universities, asking their cooperation in a plan of instruction for telegraphers and prospective telegraphers. Six thousand young men are needed for the first army of 500,000, and it is proposed to teach telegraphers the elementary knowledge of physics and electrical engineering; high school graduates and college men will be given this instruction, and a course of telegraphy in addition.

Will Furnish Instructors.

The signal corps will furnish expert telegraph instructors, and the colleges and universities are being requested to furnish the theoretical and laboratory instruction. Young men desiring to avail themselves of this opportunity should apply at once. If found eligible they will be enlisted, assigned to classes and receive army pay, food, quarters and medical attention during the course of instruction, which is expected to occupy from three to five months, according to the ability of the student.

In time of peace the signal corps is perhaps the least heard of branch of the army. In time of stress it is a most vitally necessary arm. It is the "nerves" of the army, and as such, a major factor in the conduct of military affairs. In fact, the last three years of war abroad seem to indicate it as the paramount element in the control of modern warfare.

Congress has recently doubled the pay of the private and increased the remuneration of each noncommissioned officer. The signal corps has a greater percentage of noncommissioned officers than any other branch.

The pay of a corporal is now $36 per month, in addition to food and clothing and medical attendance when needed. The rating of a sergeant is now $44, with the same subsistence; that of a sergeant, first-class, $51, and the master signal electrician—and many telegraphers have most of the requirements in this direction—$81. A signal corps is a mounted service. A knowledge of horses, if not already possessed, must be acquired, and a healthful life in the open is one of the most attractive offerings of this branch of the service.

CITY NEWS

Is Very Ill.—Miss Margaret McConkey, compelled several months ago to give up her school in Minnesota, still is confined to her home in this city by a nervous breakdown.

Visiting in City.—Mrs. Charles E. Hunt and two small daughters of Fort Lincoln are visiting at the home of Mrs. J. G. Moore on Fifth street for two days, while Major Hunt is at Fort Snelling on official business.

Writing Officers.—A. F. McLane of Minot, writing a life insurance policy especially covering officers in military service, is in Bismarck, conferring with the staff of the First and Second regiments.

Home Saturday.—Donald McPhee, chief clerk in the state auditor's office, is expected home Saturday from Ontario, where he has spent a two weeks vacation in the community where he was born.

Egan in Hospital.—Thomas Egan, janitor at the Will school, has entered a Bismarck hospital to undergo treatment for a general breakdown. While he is off his work will be cared for by Janitors Roberts and Couch of the other city schools in order that Mr. Egan may suffer no salary loss.

Enjoyable Visit.—Mrs. Max Kupitz has returned from Woodworth, where she visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Anderson and at the Charles Kupitz summer cottage on Lake Cadmus, one of North Dakota's beauty spots. Mrs. Kupitz motored home last evening, reporting that Charles Kupitz, whose health has been poor for some time, is showing a marked improvement.

In these lessons the English phrase appears in the first line, the French equivalent in the second line, and the pronunciation in the third line.

In the pronunciation key, straight lines over the letters, A and U, denote the long sound, as in "bâte" and "dûde"; curved lines over these letters indicate the short sound, as in "at" and "but", two dots over the U indicate a sound somewhat similar to the German "ue" which Americans may approach by trying to pronounce long U and long E at the same time.

Cut out these lessons and paste them in your notebook.

"TO WHAT END, O GOD?" POLICE COMMISSIONER PROVES HE IS ON JOB; BAD GANG ROUNDED UP

Chris Bertsch Catches Boy Band—
it After Exciting Chase—
Sioux County Case

Bismarck has a real police commissioner.

Yesterday Chris Bertsch, glancing out of a window, saw a very small and very industrious boy busily unscrewing parts from the police commissioner's Cadillac, standing back of the Bismarck garage. About the same time the boy saw Chris, and the youngster took to his heels. The police commissioner gave chase, and after an exciting run of several blocks overtook the boy. As a result, there was rounded up today one of the worst boys' gangs which ever has been organized in Bismarck for thievery and other petty depredations.

Working in pairs and in the mass, these youngsters, ranging in ages from eight to 12, for months past have raided fruit cars, dismantled automobiles of brasses and other parts and purloined generally things which were not absolutely nailed down. They claim to have found a ready sale for all of the brass and metal booty with a junk dealer south of the tracks, whose case is to be investigated.

This afternoon eight of the youngsters are having a hearing in Police Magistrate Blackreid's court. Some of the "gang" are old offenders, who have been in police court before. It is probable they will spend the remainder of their minority in the state training school at Mandan. Others, younger, in crime, will be given a chance to reform in the custody of their parents.

Back to Sioux County.

Charged with purloining the tires from a disabled truck near Solon and of placing them on his 1904 Maxwell and selling the combination to a farmer for $35, "Dode" Mullett was taken back to Sioux county today by Deputy Sheriff Urell to stand trial on a larceny charge. With him went William Marshall and R. J. Anderson, who were with Mullett, it is claimed, when the sale was made, but who hold that Mullett advised them when he took the tires that he was merely borrowing them, and would return them later.

Auto Smashup.

After investigating a collision between a grocery delivery car and a Minnesota touring machine at the corner of Fifth and Main this morning, the police decided both parties were equally to blame, and dismissed a complaint made by the driver of the delivery car.

Not since the flood itself has humanity faced the woe that hangs like a pall over the earth today. The mothers of all nations are asking, with streaming eyes and breaking hearts, as they send their sons into the welter of world-war; "To what end, O God?" So must the mother of him who died on the cross have questioned, in the bitterness of her soul, as she looked upward past the dying Christ, to the darkening skies of Calvary. And as Mary knew, even in her suffering, that back of that darkness shone the greatest light humanity has ever known, so the mothers of today know that back of their supreme sacrifice shines the glory and joy of world-freedom.

BY A SMALL MARGIN.

At this writing, figures on the First Congressional district election are incomplete, but enough is known to indicate that in any event the victory will not be a sweeping one. Baer will not make the showing that Governor Frazier did in the same district and surface indications are that the grip of A. C. Townley upon the Nonpartisan league is not as controlling as it was six months ago.

The result is a rebuke to the lukewarm patriotism of the socialists at the head of the league. It may mean that the members of the league, sturdy, honest farmers of the state, are preparing for a house-cleaning and the elevation of new leaders that represent a more vital Americanism and statesmanship rather than demagoguery.

As the Tribune anticipated several days ago, there seems little doubt at this writing of Baer's election, but victory is not nearly as emphatic as the friends of the league had hoped or desired.

The candidacy of George Bangs reduced Burnett's vote in his own ball-wick. Democrats worked hand and glove with the league for the election of Baer because the former Beach postmaster is of the faith. Postmaster Wilkinson of Fargo was out openly for Baer, as well as District Attorney Hildreth. These gentlemen traded Bangs for Baer just as surely as they sacrificed the entire state ticket at the last election in the interests of Wilson.

William Lomke's halfhearted support of Hughes and supposed working agreement with McArthur-Wilkinson-Hildreth, et al. in the national election has its counterpart in the First District contest. Mr. Bangs contributed more to the Baer-Victory than any other one factor. In a straight contest between Baer and Burnett, the result might have been different.

The recent decision of the supreme court throws a cloud over the election. Governor Frazier, acting upon the advice of Attorney General Langer fixed the date of election so as to invalidate any action taken by the republican convention at Grand Forks. Members of the supreme court elected on the Nonpartisan ticket condemn the political trickery practiced to shut Mr. Burnett out of the republican column and prevent other candidates from withdrawing. On top of this, Mr. Langer rules that the absent voter law does not apply to special elections. In fact, every agency was used to secure Baer's election, by fair or foul means.

It seems likely that the election will be contested, probably in the state courts and also at Washington.

THE BLUSTERING SPEAKER.

Loud talk and bluster is always a sign of weakness. Next time you get a chance size up the men who do the talking in a meeting or a conference. If you are a good judge of men, you will notice that the man of real power never indulges in personalities. He never sneers, he is rarely sarcastic, he doesn't make unkind remarks about those who oppose him. You will notice that he is willing to give and take in the argument, that he is ready to concede that the other side has some rights.

Furthermore, you will observe that much of his strength lies in the fact that there are some things that he falls to say. He shows you that he has a kind of reserve power, which the chap who shouts and blusters does not possess. He gives you the feeling that he knows what he is talking about and that his quiet-voiced statements have back of them a certain authority which every man is bound to respect.

This kind of a man is worth having in any meeting, in a political gathering, in a conference where war programs are being discussed, in the pulpit—indeed, anywhere else where real brain power and ability are required.

DON'T QUIT.

You have met him, and you've envied him.

He has a town house and a country house and a cohort of servants that oscillates between city and country opening the one home and closing the other. He spends his winters in the south and his summers in the mountains of the north.

He has, indeed, brought you a grapefruit or so from his southern grove, or perhaps you have been his guest on a motor trip. He's not a bad sort; he's willing to pay a price for friendship; but he's fat and his wife is fat. They eat and sleep and between times seek distraction from—nothing.

He's retired. Yes, sir, you've envied that man and your wife has envied that man's wife. And it's not the intention of these few words to jolly you into satisfaction with a way of life less easy, less varied than his. But it is the intention to insist on just this:

Life for that man, retired at 45 because at 35 he bought the right stock, has reached its end.

There never was an end in this world of endless possibilities worth reaching for the mere purpose of stopping at. You to whom each day must needs be a beginning are richer than the man you envy. Don't quit.

RUMANIA'S FATE.

"Death in all forms is sweeping over the country—sword, flame and invasion, hunger and sickness. Lands have been torn from us, hopes have been destroyed, towns and villages devastated. Our only remaining province are choked up with the cruelst exodus of those who flee before the foe's brutality. Our hospitals are over full, our food is scarce. Cruel want stares us in the face. We are cut off from everything and everybody and our own resources are coming to an end. I love my struggling people. I am one with their ideal. I weep with their sorrows, suffer with their pains. Do not leave my hands empty when mothers and children, soldiers and wounded cry to me in their fearful misery. When a country is small its queen becomes its mother. She must not rest. She must not despair. When many tremble, she must show no fear. In all my sadness this remains to me: The link that arises between those who sorrow. I, too have had to leave my home and all that was mine. Therefore, does my heart so well understand their grief."

This perfect picture of German work, this tear-stained description of the plight of Rumania and its queen is from the queen herself. Remember, too, that she is by birth a princess of Saxo-Coburg and Gotha and the wife of a king who is of the Hohenzollern blood.

When German princes and princesses revolt against German war-work, there is small wonder that the rest of the civilized world stands aghast at what the Kaiser and his minions have brought upon an agonized earth.

TEACHING HUMILITY.

In all the world there has been no more arrogant type of mind than that of the Prussian, and especially the Prussian militarist and the Prussian bureaucrat. It is the Prussian who has toolled all over the globe the doctrine of "Deutschland ueber alles." It is the Prussian who has believed in the doctrine that might makes right, that the German is the "blond beast," the "superman," of whom Prussian philosophers prated as the future lord and master of the earth and the seven seas. It is the Prussian who tossed into the discard, as merely futile and outworn, the doctrines of the Christian religion.

Lloyd George, prime minister of England, usually has a way of saying things that go directly to the heart of a matter. So it is well to quote him in this connection.

"We are pounding a sense of inferiority into every pore of the German military mind. As long as the Prussians have an idea of superiority in their minds Europe will not be a decent place for people to live in peace. It will be easier after this. The Prussian has many virtues, but a sense of humility has never been among them. The Prussian is now being taught the virtue of humility with a fierce and relentless lash."

The British premier indicates part of what our job is to be. We must help teach humility to the Prussian. He must learn that he is not cock of the walk and owner of the sea. He must learn by painful and bitter experience that it is easier to start a war than to win it and that he who disturbs the world's peace must pay the price in blood and tears and gold before he is allowed to say: "Hold, enough." He must learn that Americans, Britons, Frenchmen, Italians, Russians are not inferior peoples, but his equals. If, indeed, they are not vastly his superiors.

His contempt for democracies must be shot out of him. His jealousy of his neighbors must be whipped out of him.

Only when these things have been accomplished will the Prussian be a good neighbor, capable of doing his part in the world's work without disturbing or attacking others who wish to follow their lawful pursuits in peace and with a will.

CHAPTER II.

Louise, with a heavy, silver-plated candlestick in her hand, stood upon the uneven floor of the bedroom to which she had been conducted, looking up at the oak-framed family tree which hung above the broad chimney-piece. She examined the coat of arms emblazoned in the corner, and peered curiously at the last neatly printed addition, which indicated Stephen and John Strangeway as the sole survivors of a diminishing line. When at last she turned away, she found the name upon her lips.

"Strangeway!" she murmured. "John Strangeway! It is really curious how that name brings with it a sense of familiarity. It is so unusual, too. And what an unusual-looking person! Do you think, Alice, that you ever saw anyone so superbly handsome?"

The maid's little grimace was expressive.

"Never, madam," she replied. "And yet to think of it—a gentleman, a person of intelligence, who lives here always, outside the world, with just a terrible old man servant, the only domestic in the house! Nearly all the cooking is done at the butler's, a quarter of a mile away."

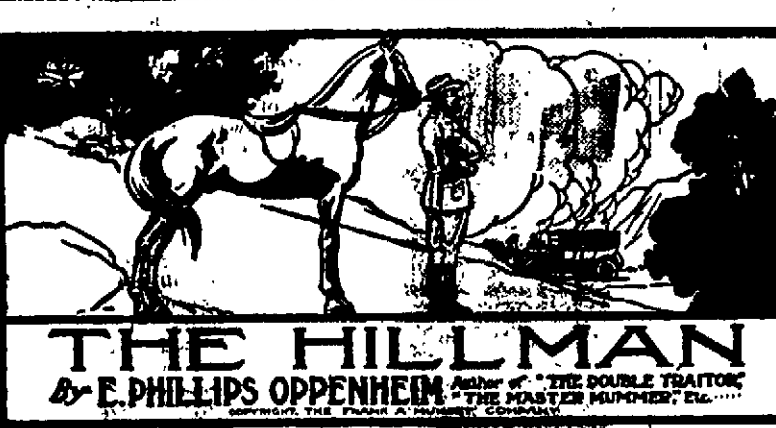

Louise nodded thoughtfully.

"It is very strange," she admitted. "I should like to understand it. Perhaps," she added, half to herself, "some day I shall."

She paused across the room, and on her way paused before an old chandelier, before which were suspended two silver candlesticks containing lighted wax candles. She looked steadily at her own reflection. A little smile parted her lips. In the bedroom of this quaint farmhouse she was looking upon a face and a figure which the illustrated papers and the enterprise of the modern photographer had combined to make familiar to the world—the figure of a girl, it seemed, notwithstanding her twenty-seven years. Her soft, white blouse was upon at the neck, displaying a beautifully rounded throat. Her eyes dwelt upon the oval face, with its strong, yet mobile features; its lips a little full, perhaps, but soft and sensitive; at the masses of brown hair drawn low over her ears.

This was herself, then. How would she seem to these two men downstairs, she asked herself—the dour, grim master of the house, and her more faithful rescuer, whose coming had somehow touched her fancy? They saw so little of her sex. They seemed, in a sense, to be in league against it. Would they find out that they were entertaining an angel unaware?

She thought with a gratified smile of her insignificance. It was a real trial of her strength, this! When she turned away from the mirror the smile still lingered upon her lips, a soft light of anticipation was shining in her eyes. John met her at the foot of the stairs. She noticed with some surprise

She thought with a gratified smile of her insignificance. It was a real trial of her strength, this! When she turned away from the mirror the smile still lingered upon her lips, a soft light of anticipation was shining in her eyes. John met her at the foot of the stairs. She noticed with some surprise before he is allowed to say: "Hold, enough." He must learn that Americans, Britons, Frenchmen, Italians, Russians are not inferior peoples, but his equals. If, indeed, they are not vastly his superiors.

His contempt for democracies must be shot out of him. His jealousy of his neighbors must be whipped out of him.

Only when these things have been accomplished will the Prussian be a good neighbor, capable of doing his part in the world's work without disturbing or attacking others who wish to follow their lawful pursuits in peace and with a will.

"Perhaps you are right, brother," he admitted. "This lady did not seek out company, but it may interest her to know that she is the first woman who has crossed the threshold of Peak Hall for a matter of six years."

Louise looked from one to the other half incredulously.

"Do you really mean it? Is that lit erally true?" she asked John.

"Absolutely," the young man assured her; "but please remember that you are none the less heartily welcome here. We have few women neighbors and intercourse with them seems to have slipped out of our lives. Tell me how far have you come today, and where did you hope to sleep tonight?"

Louise hesitated for a moment. For some reason or other, the question seemed to bring with it some disturbing thought.

"I was motoring from Edinburgh. As regards tonight, I had not made up my mind. I rather hoped to reach Kendal. My journey is not at all an interesting matter to talk about," she went on. "Tell me about your life here. It sounds most delightfully pastoral. Do you live here all the year round?"

"My brother," John told her, "has not been farther away than the nearest market town for nearly twenty years."

Her eyes grew round with astonishment.

"But you go to London sometimes?"

"I was there eight years ago. Since then I have not been further away than Carlisle or Kendal. I go into camp near Kendal for three weeks every year—territorial training, you know."

"But how do you pass your time? What do you do with yourself?" she asked.

"Farming," he answered. "Farming is our daily occupation. Then for amusement we hunt, shoot and fish. The seasons pass before we know it."

She looked appraisingly at John Strangeway. Notwithstanding his untanned cheeks and the splendid vigor of his form, there was nothing in the least agricultural about his manner or his appearance. There was humor as well as intelligence in his clear, gray eyes. She opined that the books which lined one side of the room were at once his property and his hobby.

"It is a very healthy life, no doubt," she said; "but somehow it seems incomprehensible to think of a man like yourself living always in such an out-of-the-way corner."

John's lips were open to reply, but Stephen once more intervened.

"Life means a different thing to each of us, madam," he said sternly. "There are many born with the last for cities and the crowded places in their hearts, born with the desire to mingle with their fellows, to absorb the conventional ideas and virtues, to become one of the multitude. It has been different with us Strangeways."

Jennings, at a sign from his master, removed the tea equipage, evidently produced in honor of their visitor. Three tall-stemmed glasses were placed upon the table, and a decanter of port reverently produced.

Louise had fallen for a moment or two into a fit of abstraction. Her eyes were fixed upon the opposite wall, from which, out of their faded frames, a group of grim-looking men and women, staringly like her two hosts, seemed to frown down upon her.

"Is that your father?" she asked, moving her head toward one of the portraits.

"My grandfather, John Strangeway," Stephen told her.

"Was he one of the wanderers?"

"He left Cumberland only twice during his life. He was master of bounds, magistrate, colonel in the yeomanry of that period, and three times refused to stand for parliament."

"John Strangeway?" Louise repeated softly to herself. "I was looking at your family tree upstairs," she went on. "It is curious how both my maid and myself were struck with a sense of familiarity about the name, as if we had heard or read something about it quite lately."

Her words were almost carelessly spoken, but she was conscious of the somewhat ominous silence which ensued. She glanced up wonderingly and intercepted a rapid look passing between the two men. More puzzled than ever, she turned toward John as if for an explanation. He had risen somewhat abruptly to his feet, and his hand was upon the back of her chair.

"Will it be disagreeable to you if my brother smokes a pipe?" he asked. "I tried to have our little drawing room prepared for you, but the fire has not been lit for so long that the room, I am afraid, is quite impossible."

"Do let me stay here with you," she begged, "and I hope that both of you will smoke. I am quite used to it."

John wheeled up an easy chair for her. Stephen, stiff and upright, sat on the other side of the hearth. He took the tobacco jar and pipe that his brother had brought him, and slowly filled the bowl.

"With your permission, then, madam," he said, as he struck a match. Louise smiled graciously. Some instinct prompted her to stifle her own craving for a cigarette and keep her little gold case hidden in her pocket. All the time her eyes were wandering round the room. Suddenly she rose and, moving round the table, stood once more facing the row of gloomy-looking portraits.

"So that is your grandfather?" she remarked to John, who had followed her. "Is your father not here?"

"He shook his head."

"Mr. father's portrait was never painted."

"Tell the truth, John," Stephen enjoined, rising in his place and setting down his pipe. "We Strangeways were hillfolk and farmers, by descent and destiny, for more than four hundred years. Our place is here upon the land, almost among the clouds, and those of us who have realized it have led the lives God meant us to lead. There have been some of our race who have been tempted into the lowlands and the dust. Not one of them brought honor upon our name. Their pictures are not here. They are not worthy to be here."

Stephen set down the candlesticks and returned to his place. Louise, with her hands clasped behind her back, glanced toward John, who still stood by her side.

"Tell me," she asked him, "have none of your people who went out into the world done well for themselves?"

"Scarcely one," he admitted.

"Not one," Stephen interrupted. "Madam," he went on turning toward Louise, "lest my welcome to you this evening should have seemed inhospitable, let me tell you this: Every Strangeway who has left our county, and trodden the downward path of failure, has done so at the instance of one of your sex. That is why those of us who inherit the family spirit look askance upon all strange women. That is why no woman is ever welcome within this house."

Louise resumed her seat in the easy chair.

"I am so sorry," she murmured, looking down at her slipper. "I could not help breaking down here, could I?"

"Nor could my brother fail to offer you the hospitality of this roof," Stephen admitted. "The incident was unfortunate but inevitable. It is a matter for regret that we have so little to offer you in the way of entertainment." He rose to his feet. The door had opened. Jennings was standing there with a candlestick upon a massive silver salver. Behind him was Alice. "You are doubtless fatigued by your journey, madam," Stephen concluded. Louise made a little grimace, but she rose at once to her feet. She understood quite well that she was being sent to bed, and she shivered a little when she looked at the hour—barely ten o'clock. Yet it was all in keeping. From the doorway she looked back into the room, in which nothing seemed to have been touched for centuries. She stood upon the threshold to bid her final good-night, fully conscious of the complete anachronism of her presence there.

Her smile for Stephen was respectful and full of dignity. As she glanced toward John, however, something flashed in her eyes and quivered at the corners of her lips, something which accused her control, something which made him grip for a moment the back of the chair against which he stood. Then, between the old manservant, who insisted upon carrying her candle to her room, and her maid, who walked behind, she crossed the white stone hall and stepped slowly up the broad flight of stairs.

Camp Fire to Meet.
The Wichaka Camp Fire will meet with Dorothy and Louise Huber on South Second street this evening at 7:30. The meeting will be a ceremonial meeting and all members are requested to be present. Miss Mead will be in charge.

Aid Society to Meet.
The ladies of the First district of the Methodist Ladies Aid society will hold their meeting in the lower auditorium of the church on Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. After the business meeting there will be a social hour and an ice cream social, to which the ladies invite all their friends.

With Miss Bruce.
The young ladies' organization of St. George's Episcopal church will meet on Friday with Miss Glenn Bruce, instead of with Miss Anne Baker, as originally announced. At this meeting they will decide upon a name for their organization, and they will also work on the articles for the bazaar they expect to hold just before Christmas. This is one of the regular meetings, those of Thursdays being special meetings to work on articles for the bazaar.

Unusually Good.
Miss Elizabeth Bayless, society editor of the Tribune, successfully underwent a slight operation at the Bismarck hospital yesterday noon. Today she is reported as making excellent progress toward recovery, with

Local Man Composes Patriotic Song

Charles B. Simons, manager of the Hoskins greenhouse, is the author of a patriotic song, which promises to become very popular. The song is entitled, "America," and is published by the Needham Music company of St. Louis. Mr. Simons came to Bismarck two years ago, from Forest City, Ia. The song follows:
On, every sea thy flag must be unfurled,
And nations rise to bless; they bless ed thy abode,
America, the watchword of the world,
America.

On every land thy flag must be unfurled,
And liberty from slumbers must arise,
Though drenched in blood, a new born world will fling the banner to the morning skies, America.

Make thrones totter with their kings
Until one great republic with all nations be
No sub or slave in all the universe,
But the brotherhood of man on land and sea

Then your sons that die, not in vain,
And mothers, what you gave is worth
the cost,
One great and mighty nation till the end,
Then you have gained what never can be lost

Then, only then, to lay away the sword,
And only then will world's peace anthem rise;
Then in this universe of men,
No throne but one, our Universal King.

POLKA DOT RAGE LIKE AN EPIDEMIC

By BETTY BROWN. New York, July 11.—Polka dots came overseas from Paris weeks ago. No item of woman's apparel has escaped the contagion. Silk hosiery is all broken out with them, and milliners crown and band the smartest hats with them. Foulard has a most pronounced case of the epidemic. White dots on blue and blue dots on white are uniquely combined in a most stunning summer frock.

CAPITOL NOTES

NEW CORPORATIONS.
New corporations of the day are the Kensal Light & Power Co., Kensal; capital, $15,000; incorporators, H. P. Krag, F. L. Nichols and Anton Becker, and the Ashley Electric Co., capital, $10,000; incorporators, S. P. Wage, Y. S. Johnstone and M. J. George.

MORE ROAD FUNDS.
Eugene M. Walla, in charge of the automobile registration department of the secretary of state's office, today remitted the highway tax on a $10,752 car, placed on the state highway, because of the state highway's proceeds of the June automobile registration fees.

75 MEN IN.
The Bismarck company in the Second regiment now musters 75 men. Dawson has furnished 14; Tappan, 15; Napoleon and Kintyre, 12; Steele, 8; Mandan, 5; Centor, 4, and the capital city and vicinity the balance. Captain A. B. Welch is pushing recruiting work with a view of enlisting up to 100 men at least before the Second is called upon to mobilize at Fort Lincoln.

A PATRIOT.
"You're a soldier boy, I want to shake hands with you, God bless you," said a lady whose honorable wrinkles and gray hair indicated that she has passed her allotted three score and ten, as she walked up to Capt. A. B. Welch, standing in the capitol lobby this morning. I had a husband in the old war; I have a great grandson in this war. I would go myself if I were able," said the aged patriot, her eyes sparkling.

OFFICE SELF-SUPPORTING.
The office of police magistrate last month not only supported itself but returned to the city a neat earning of $34.00. The receipts of the office were $99.35 and the expenses $64.35. In May the office did not quite break even, with an earning of $32.50 and $36.35 costs. If the justice mill is made permanently self-supporting it will relieve the city taxpayers of one burden.

At 30 Ty Cobb Attains Greatest Achievement of Baseball Career

In his 12 years in baseball, Ty Cobb has smashed more baseball records than any other player.

He has held and still holds, batting, baserunning and extra base honors. He has been voted the most valuable man in baseball time after time.

But in all his years in baseball Cobb has never accomplished such a feat as his string of hits in a number of consecutive games this year.

For nine years Cobb led the American league in batting, but this record, in itself great, is trivial when compared to his record this year.

It is trivial because of the iron determination and nerve which made it possible for Cobb at 39 to accomplish what he has in 1917.

Last year, for the first time Cobb was forced out of his leadership for American league batting honors. Critics predicted that he would never regain it.

Along in May this year it seemed that their predictions would be realized. For the first time in years Cobb fell below the .300 mark.

GREAT RECORD FOR ASSISTS

George Stovall, While Playing First Base for St. Louis, Helped to Retire Seven Men.

Fans love to know who holds the many records that are changing almost daily, but George Stovall, when first basing for the Browns, made a record for assists at that post, and he made the mark against the Athletics. The record is seven assists in a single game.

In the first inning he tossed out Rube Oldring on a sacrifice. Del Pratt covering first base. In the second, inning Jack Barry, now manager of the Red Sox, grounded and Stovall scooped the Dodgers at second. Later Colenth inning and nailed Frank Baker, now of the New Yorks, at second. Bris Lord then sacrificed in the eighth and Stovall scooped up the ball and tossed it to Pratt, who covered second, and made it the seventh assist of the day, a world's record for a first baseman.

STARS LACK IN ENTHUSIASM

Baseball Players of Today Do Not Measure Up to Those of Few Years Ago, Says Evers.

Johnny Evers says the stars of today do not quite measure up to the players of fifteen years ago. The little Trojan insists that the current day play lacks the enthusiasm displayed by the great old-timers, and for that reason alone does not produce the result that the old boys showed.

Comes From Ireland to Rejoin Soldiers of Sea

There's a little spot in Ireland that Michael McNamara had in his "mind's eye" for a long time—thirty years, in fact. All that time Michael was obeying orders, drilling, campaigning and doing the hundred-and-one things that fall to the lot of the American marine.

Michael finished his time, retiring with the rank of "sargint mador, no less," and went back to that little spot in County Mayo.

Then came our participation in the war. Did Michael stay retired? He did not! He came right back, paying his own fare, and went directly to the U. S. Marine corps headquarters to volunteer his services.

McNamara could have signed up with some Irish regiment, for, despite his fifty-odd years, he is still a "tolne broth av a boy." Instead, he braved the submarines to fight under the flag that for thirty years he had called his own.

JRGES USE OF WHALE MEAT

Uncle Sam's Bureau of Fisheries Expects Early Demand Both in Fresh and Preserved Form.

For some time Uncle Sam's bureau of fisheries in correspondence and in personal interviews, has been advocating the use of the meat of whales, porpoises, dolphins, and other cetaceans for food. There is evidence of great interest now being manifested in this matter by whale fishermen on both coasts, and it would not be surprising to the bureau if within a short time the meat of whales and smaller cetaceans in both fresh and preserved form would be in demand and extensively utilized.

Whales and porpoises are mammals like cattle and sheep, and their flesh is "meat" and not "fish." In texture and appearance it resembles beef, though the color is darker red and the flavor is closer to that meat than any other. It is devoid of all fishy taste. It is likely that it will soon be obtainable fresh, corned, and canned, and it is recommended by the bureau to those who have the opportunity to purchase it.

Whale meat was placed on the market in Seattle, Wash., and Portland Ore. The product met with a ready sale at 10 cents a pound and was immediately placed on the menus of hotels and restaurants under its proper name.

DIAMOND NOTES

Maisei continues to play second base for the Yankees in fine style.

The Indians have signed Art Hoffman, veteran Cub, to act as utility man.

Add sorrows of war: Paying a tax on baseball and seeing the home team lose.

Jack Coombs may be able to beat the Giants, but the Cubs have less respect for him.

Happy Felsch and Joe Jackson are swinging at the ball as if they meant business.

Arguing with an umpire is about as satisfactory as playing poker against a cold deck.

President Tanager's decision not to tolerate rowdism on the diamond is an excellent one.

Coombs, who was not much of a left hander last season, is one of Cleveland's surprises this spring.

Habits are generally to be encouraged, but Walter Pipp should not be held back from his swatting habit.

Armando Marsans may be the next exp. Fed on the St. Louis Browns to depart. Marsans is hitting nothing at all.

Some well-known pitchers would make excellent material for the aviation corps. Going up in the air is their specialty.

The Bank with the Clock

What Is a National Bank?

A National Bank, such as this institution, differs from other banks in that it is organized and conducted under the careful supervision of the United States Government.

National Bank Examiners, under the direction of the Comptroller of the Currency keep in touch with the details of this bank's workings and moreover, strict rules and regulations to insure absolute safety have been laid down by the Government and must be followed.

This is one feature of the unquestioned safety we offer you in inviting your account.

DEPARTMENT KEPT BUSY BY LETTERS
Correspondence of Uncle Sam's Agricultural Experts is Heavy.
UNUSUAL REQUESTS ARE MADE
Officials at Washington Are Asked for Information on Variety of Matters Ranging From Dress to Medicine.

Though his daily mail may be a matter of speculation and interest, the average recipient often exclaims and sighs over the amount of work necessary in keeping his correspondence up to date. But what of a list that includes 65,000 correspondents and the arrival of from 1,000 to 8,000 letters a day? Such, indeed, is the correspondence of the department of agriculture. It is probably larger than that of any other government department, and the burden of maintaining it falls almost entirely upon the division of publications.

In general the nature of this correspondence is much like that of a huge mail-order house. Demands for bulletins, reports and documents issued by the department form the bulk of it, but a decidedly personal note is touched in the numerous requests for miscellaneous information. Judging from these last, the department is, in the minds of many persons, the final authority on matters ranging from dress to medicine.

Many Personal Letters Necessary.

"One important part of the work of the division of publications," said Joseph A. Arnold, its editor and chief, "is the replying to requests for information by typewritten letters where the department has no printed matter on the subject. The press bulletin matter issued through our office of information reaches a widely distributed public and frequently contains information that has not appeared in bulletin form. Interested persons, seeing these notices, write and request a publication covering the subject, making a specific letter necessary. We also frequently receive requests for information on subjects not properly coming within the scope of the department. These are sometimes both humorous and pathetic.

"We usually classify the publications of the department as miscellaneous documents and farmers' bulletins. These latter are more in demand than ever. The number used by the bureau, offices and divisions is rapidly increasing, caused undoubtedly in a large measure by the extension work of the department. The large number of farmers' bulletins sent to educational institutions for distribution to pupils represents really about one-tenth of the demand from that class of applicants, as it has been necessary in complying with these requests to forward only about one-tenth of the number requested and to inform the applicant that he may secure the additional copies needed from the superintendent of documents, government printing office, here in Washington, or possibly through the representative representing his district or a senator from his state."

In one instance recently this suggestion, made in good faith, was very indignantly received. In reply came a letter addressed to the department: "Dear Sir: Can't we pull loose from the pork barrel? I will not sell my vote to any senator or representative for 75 cents. I will not pay 70 cents for a thing that 470,000 other American citizens get either gratis or in trade for their vote. Isn't this country big enough to stop the petty bribery of professional politicians?"

Letters of Abuse Common.

Necessarily, the department must answer such letters calmly. Indeed, letters of abuse, especially of the government clerk, are not infrequent. More numerous, however, are those requesting information which is entirely outside of the ken of the department. From time to time requests have been made for dress patterns. One woman wrote to ask how she might take indelible ink stains out of a black silk dress with white stripes in it.

One old man, a city dweller for some seventy years, asked the best way to find employment in the country. Among the letters was that of a woman who wanted to know if gourds were poisonous, because she had eaten a green one ten days ago.

These letters are only samples of the variety to be found in the mail bag of the department. The foreign mail is an interesting feature. This, so far as the publications of the department are concerned, continues to increase. During the last fiscal year there were forwarded to foreign countries 83,973 packages of publications at a cost of $2,295.48 in postage.

In addition to the distribution of the documents of the department, the division of publications, under different branches, edits and illustrates them and conducts a system of indexing. The work of illustrating has grown steadily. This past year 87 requests for photographic work were received from persons outside of the department. A new feature of the work has been the establishment of a moving picture laboratory. The films are used by the department's representative in connection with field and demonstration meetings.

WOULD USE MEXICAN GOATS
Head of Breeder's Association Tells Uncle Sam's Experts They Will Help Solve Food Problem.
Civilize the Mexican goat and solve the problem of the poor, was the message carried to Uncle Sam's agricultural experts by S. Douglas Demmon, president of the American Goat Breeders' association.
"Since the time of the Aryan race along the Euphrates the goat has supported the poor," said Mr. Demmon. "Turn him loose on the mountainous lands of the eastern states and he'll sweep through them like the German army turning shrubbery into meat and milk."
"Goat kid flesh is a delicacy," Demmon said. "The average female goat will produce six kids a year—two or three at a time—and until these kids are six months old the meat is fine if they are fed as lambs are fed."

MIDDIES TRAVEL NO ROYAL ROAD TOWARD DEMOCRACY PREVAILING IN U. S. NAVY

IT'S A HARD, STEADY GRIND FROM ENTRANCE TO GRADUATION, WITH ONLY ONE MONTH VACATION EACH YEAR.

Annapolis, Md., July 11.—Capt. E. W. Eberle, superintendent of the United States naval academy here sent 720 midshipmen—future naval officers—to sea the other day to get some practical experience. Today they're scattered among a score or more of battleships, torpedo boat destroyers and cruisers, shoveling coal, swabbing decks, practicing with the guns and doing exactly what thousands of enlisted men are doing. It's an illustration of the "new democracy" that pervades the American navy. "The first essential in turning out a good officer is to instill in him an appreciation of the services of the men who will be under him," said Capt. Eberle. So, carrying out Capt. Eberle's theories of democracy, the midshipmen this summer will acquire, first hand, accurate knowledge as to just how hard it is to keep the furnaces aboard ship supplied with coal or just how much muscle it takes to keep the ship spick and span. There's no royal road through the naval academy. Dad's political pull may get the boy an appointment to Annapolis, but pull, wealth and family connections count for nothing when it comes to going up against the stiff examinations. Only from 38 to 45 per cent of the applicants pass the entrance examination.

GEORGE WILL HEADS BOARD

Census Shows 1,653 Children of School Age in Bismarck

The new school board at its annual meeting last night elected the following officers: George F. Will, president; Richard Penwarden, clerk; John A. Larson, treasurer. All the members were present except Mr. Everts, who is out of town. The report of the census enumerator was received and placed under consideration. The returns show 1,653 children of school age in Special District No. 1. The board took up the question of the sanitary condition pertaining to the rooms rented in the business college, and after some discussion placed it in the hands of the building and grounds committee for investigation and report. The pay of the head janitors of the respective schools was increased to $50. The levy for the ensuing year was placed at $46,000. The question of needed repairs for the different schools was discussed at length, and the president requested that adjournment be taken until Wednesday afternoon, when all members agreed to make a visit of inspection to the schools, particularly the North Ward school. Immediately on the completion of these visits they will continue their session to decide what repairs must be made, as it is necessary to begin work at once in order to have the buildings ready for the opening of school in the fall. It was also agreed to discuss delaying the opening of school in order to allow the boys to help in harvest.

Wilton Girl Holds Record for Uncle Sam's Recruiting

Wilton, N. D., July 11.—Miss Esther Olson, Wilton's most efficient recruiting officer, has returned from a visit with her parents in Little Falls, Minn., to resume her duties. Chiefly through the efforts of Miss Olson, Wilton has a record among towns of its size in this section of the state for enlistments in the navy and the regular army. She is as attractive as she is patriotic, and very few young men have been able to resist her suasive powers when she singled them out and advised them that their Uncle Samuel had work for them to do.

Followed instructions. Ted's sister had a friend call on her. Ted saluted him by his nickname and was told that he must never shorten anyone's name. The next morning Ted came in from the poultry yard and said: "That gray duck eats all the corn because she has such a broad 'William'."

FREE FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN. On Saturday we will give away 500 Orpheum theatre tickets to the "Middies," starting at 9 o'clock, in our new location at 422 Broadway. Klein, Taylor and Clean.

NOT ONE SLACKER THERE

Father and Five Sons of New Jersey Are All in Army in War With Germany.

Verona, N. J.—No one would accuse Thomas Elston of this place and his family of being a group of slackers. The father, who is now an American citizen, was born in Devonshire, England, and served six years in the artillery branch of the British army. Too old for active service in the land of his adoption, he has joined the Verona Home Battalion. The family consists of five boys and three girls. The girls are all married and rearing families. The boys are following in the footsteps of their father. Francis, the eldest son, served two years with the British army in South Africa during the Boer war, while Frederick, the next son, also served in the Boer war and is now somewhere in Saloniki with the Royal Engineer corps. William, the third son, was about to enlist at the beginning of the war, but was prevented from doing so by a broken leg. The father has not heard from him for months and believes he is now at the front with the British forces. The fourth son, George, is listed in the aerial corps and is now at the western front in France. Gilbert is the only son whose home is with his father here. When troops were ordered to the Mexican border he enlisted in Company K, Fifth New Jersey Infantry, and served until mustered out. Upon the recent call of the president he again responded and is now with Company K in New Jersey.

PRICELESS BOOK IS FOUND

"Letters of Vespucci" Stolen From Florence Some Years Ago, Is Recovered in Mail.

London.—A Rome dispatch reports: "Some years ago there was stolen from Florence an old book of priceless value of which only one copy is in existence. It was entitled 'The Letters of Amerigo Vespucci' and in it the celebrated Florentine explorer recounted the journeys and discoveries which he made shortly after Columbus. 'The book belonged to Marquis Capponi, but, despite prolonged inquiries by the police, no trace of it could be found. Now the police, while inspecting postal packages addressed to foreign countries on the Italian-Swiss frontier, have discovered a parcel containing the precious work. The package was addressed to a German bookseller who fled to Switzerland after the outbreak of war.'"

GERMANS GET BOGUS PAPERS

Fury of British Drive Made Impossible to Continue Publication of the Genuine.

London.—War papers issued by German armies at the front are bringing high prices. The fury of the British drive has made it impossible to continue their publication and scarcity of numbers issued has resulted in as high as 300 marks ($60) being offered for a single copy. Printers throughout the empire are working on counterfeit reproductions, many of which are so near the originals that it is impossible to tell them apart. Although warnings have been given not to buy the bogus copies, thousands are being sold as originals throughout the country.

American Invents Wireless Air Torpedo

America has another amazing war invention to add to her record—the wireless aerial torpedo. G. F. Russell of New York, its inventor, is here shown with the weapon. It is built with "planes" and "wings," can be controlled by wireless from an airplane or the ground and made to strike wherever desired.

Fall of Old Three-Eye Throws Shadow on Minors

For the first time in many years the minor leagues are seriously threatened. Every year since the Federal league invasion there has been talk of disbanding minor leagues and many of the smaller aggregations have been wrecked off the rocks of poor attendance and financial deficits. But the situation has assumed graver proportions this year. It demands the earnest consideration of all interested in minor league activities. A real blow was handed the national minor league organization when the Three-I league disbanded a few days ago. This league, one of the oldest minors, has withstood every financial difficulty. Composed of wealthy prosperous towns in Iowa and Illinois, it has laughed while other weaker leagues were going under. Even when brought face to face with serious difficulties the Three-I has managed to find some way out. But this year the Three-I could not stand the pressure and went on the rocks. In this action it followed three other leagues which have been forced to close shop since the season opened two months ago. The Virginia league was forced to discontinue a few weeks after its opening. Then the North Carolina league disbanded. The Northern league closed at the same time the Three-I went under. Several other minors are on the verge of going to the wall. There has even been talk this season of closing the parks in the super-minors, the American association and the international league, but it is believed these with the Coast organization, the Western and Southern leagues in class A and Texas and southern western outfits will be able to weather out the season. The Central league also seems to be in pretty fair shape this season and may be able to finish its season. The Western league has been forced to divide its season into two championship seasons to keep up interest. Patronage in the Western is said to be below normal. Many of the minors could be put on their feet with a little help from the majors, but there is little chance of aid from that quarter.

With the Editors

A PROPAGANDA OF DISLOYALTY.

(Chicago Tribune.) Our country is at war with Germany. This fact does not seem to have been grasped by some individuals in public and private life who pretend to be loyal American citizens. War permits of but two classes in this country, those who are for the United States and those who are for Germany. Those who are not for this country are against it. There must be no more quibbling over this principle. The nation has gone into the world war without passion, but it does not follow that its duty of citizenship is relaxed in any degree. Men must choose now whether they are Americans or not Americans. Loyal citizenship demands more than passive obedience, inaction or lip service. It demands whole hearted effort to assist the government and the country in the prosecution of the war and the achievement of victory. We cannot accept ancestry or tradition or personal opinions as justification for any failure to render this support to the utmost of the individual's ability. This may be a painful duty, but it is absolutely essential. During our civil war men fought their blood brothers, and thousands who were with the south on the issue of slavery fought loyally against her. Now that war again strikes across ties of kindred and conviction the republic demands once more the sacrifice and expects it to be freely made. The Tribune has never doubted and does not now doubt that the great mass of citizens whose birth or ancestry is of central Europe are loyal to this country and will continue so in all circumstances. But there is evidence of the existence of a minority which has a very inadequate sense of its citizen responsibility. This minority seems to think that it can be American and German at the same time; that it can be made to appear compatible with loyal Americanism to attack the measures adopted by the American government to prosecute the war against Germany to which we are committed and which without any question the majority of the nation is ready and determined to support. If this attack were directed at the defects of these measures and were intended to clear the way for a more efficient prosecution of the war against the public good it would be consistent with loyalty. But it is intended to prevent the United States from succeeding in war, and no amount of debate about the rights and wrongs of the conflict can obscure the fact that it is an act of aid to the enemy, an act of disloyalty to the United States. In Germany, Austria or Hungary it would be branded traitorous and stamped out with an iron heel. The United States has entered war by solemn act of the constituted authorities. It has pledged its honor and it has committed its interests and its safety to the arbitrament of war, exactly as Germany, France, England and other belligerents have done. Men who try to weaken our action, who advance policies which would make our strength futile, are enemies of America's safety, honor and interest. This is fully understood by every true American, as it is fully understood in every other nation, even including distracted Russia. For non-resistant idealists who would compel peace at any cost there is more justification than for men who, because their hearts are more deeply committed to the place of their origin than to the place of their adoption, are under one guise or another of specious argument, trying to retard vigorous action by the government and to stir up opposition or rebellion among the people. The anti-American propaganda takes several forms. It preaches the fallacy that American security calls for a retention of all our army at home. It tries to stir up revolt against our military measures by preaching against sending American boys to die in Europe. It fought the draft and supported the volunteer system because the former was effectual and the latter futile. It does all possible to spread hatred and suspicion of our allies. This propaganda is foredoomed to failure, for the American public is not easily gullible and is sound and loyal. The American people are not quitters, and they will not quit at the behest of influences whose un-American motives are clear. But the propaganda is deplorable, not because there is any danger that it will induce the great republic to an act of repudiation and retreat to which Russia, in the midst of the agony of re-birth, would not stoop. It is deplorable because it cannot fail to create internal division, mutual distrust, and deep resentment in our country. The reaction against the victims of this propaganda, against any individual or class which does not prove whole heartedly loyal in this trial, will be serious and of long duration. The fate of politicians or others who are dabbling with treason in these days will be well merited, but the upgrowth of divided sympathies and of distrust among citizens is an evil we hope our country may escape. We trust this anti-American propaganda will be repudiated by those to whom it is directed and that wiser counsels and a more loyal spirit of leadership will appear. In any case it must be marked for what it is, whatever it appears, a propaganda of disloyalty, which goes very near to treason.

RUSSIANS BURN SECRET POLICE RECORDS

Russian revolutionists have burned the records of the terrible secret police. There was great rejoicing at this news, here shown in a great heap for the flames, went up in smoke. The czar used these records to oppress and exile Russians whose work was for the state. This mass of papers was one of the mainstays of the old autocracy. This is the first photo of the burning to reach America. It was sent to The Tribune by William G. Shepard, United States Press staff correspondent in Petrograd.

NOTHING DOING TO DATE ON NEW OUSTER EFFORT

Would Be Necessary for Governor to Prefer Charges Against Board Before Referee

COURTS WOULD HAVE FINAL JURISDICTION

Nothing could be found at the state house today to warrant reports emanating from Fargo to the effect that Governor Frazier intends to immediately launch his long anticipated attack on the state board of regents. The attorney general's office was not aware that any proceedings had been started, or that they were immediately contemplated. While it is generally believed that the administration has not played its last card, and while it is safe to predict from day to day that something will be done, that something has not materialized to date.

Manner of Procedure.

If the governor prefers charges against the board of regents, it is presumed that in justice to the board these charges will be heard by a referee, rather than that the governor, avowedly unfriendly to the board, will constitute himself prosecutor and judge. The act creating the board gives the governor power to remove for "incompetency, neglect of duty, immorality, malfeasance in office, or for other good cause," but it does not provide for the removal of the board in making the removal. It is presumed that the plan followed in the removal of other state and county officers will be adopted.

Should the board lose out in its hearing before a referee, it has the right of appeal to the district court and thence to the supreme bench. It will be recalled that when Governor Hanna sought to remove the Hettin-

ONLY NINE COUNTIES MISSING IN REPORT

At noon today only nine county examination boards had failed to report to Charles Leissman, draft clerk in the office of the adjutant general. Forms now have been received by which each county's draft quota and credits will be worked out. This will consume several days, and when complete will prove of much interest to the various counties, which for the first time will ascertain the number of soldiers with which they already have been credited, as well as the number which they will still be required to produce.

Washington, July 11.—Formal complaint against the Curtis Publishing company was issued today by the federal trade commission charging unfair business practices and stifling of competition by refusing sale of publications to dealers handling competitors' publications.

Masterpieces of Correspondence.

France has in various periods given us such masterpieces of correspondence as those of La Rochefoucauld, M. de Valois, Voltaire, Mme. de Maintenon, Mme. du Deffand, Mme. de Sevigne, Mme. Roland, George Sand and Prosper Merimee, but Germany, rich as she is in literature, has given us but few men of distinction in this line. Schiller, Goethe and Humboldt alone contributing anything worthy of historical preservation.

What is Going on in Germany

As Told by the Newspapers We Get From the Teutonic Empires and Neutral Nations.

HINT AT REVOLT IN BERLIN ON MAY 17

Rumblings are coming through the German press that hint happenings in Berlin on May 17 of great significance. Here is a paragraph written to the chancellor by Baron von Bodelschwingh-Schwarzenhausen, published in the Berlin Tageblatt:

"May 17 and are now lying at rest in the Frei Friedrichstrasse warn your excellency in time against the perils that surround you and the nation."

The baron's friend, Baron von Gebstättel, also wrote to the chancellor and his letter, published in the Bergische Arbeiterstimme, continues the warning and adds to the fragmentary revelation:

"The sentiments prevailing in wide sections of our people are most bitter. They border even on despair at the thought that in the most important political circles there is a tendency to abandon the complete exploitation of the fruits of our certain victory."

"Its inevitable and speedy consequences would be—the word must be uttered, however bitter it be—revolution. The monarchy will be imperiled, nay, overthrown, and with it the fate of our people will be sealed."

Your excellency, these are no idle fancies of a troubled brain, nor are they the ideas of one man. Thus speak, think, and fear innumerable brave men, who stand firm at the side of monarchy, but who are aware of what is going on among the people and who do not threaten; I warn."

ANOTHER PAPER JOINS IN CONDEMNING CONQUEST

Joining with other German papers condemning the junker idea of conquest, the Mulhouse Volkszeitung speaks thus frankly:

"Has then all the precious blood of our sons and brothers been shed in vain? Do we not owe the dead lying in foreign soil a German peace? Shall not the foe who attacked us be punished?"

"Those who thoughtlessly preach such a 'peace of restoration' and who, in the name of a 'complete victory,' harp on the idea of conquest, are the enemies of our people. Enough of the horrible throttling work, enough of the fearful want at home! Let us not appeal to the brave dead. Let them rest in peace. They fell in the defense of the fatherland, not for the conquest of foreign lands nor for the enslavement of foreign peoples."

"We have no right to speak of re-wards or compensations, least of all have those the right whose only aim is to enrich themselves with the spoils of war. Do they imagine that our glorious dead in Ypres will be happier at the thought that Herr von this or Frau von that have been enabled through new-won wealth to acquire an estate in Belgium, or France, or in Russia?"

"Death to the preachers of conquest and spoliation!"

Stomach Trouble Cured—Could Not Eat—Peruna Made Me a Well Man

Mr. George W. Close, No 124 Nevada Bldg., Denver, Colo., writes: "I have all the faith in the world in your medicine, as it cured me of catarrh of the stomach. I was in a most distressing condition, and life looked dark indeed. I could not eat. My food did not do me any good. I gradually lost flesh and was thin and emaciated. I was glad indeed to find that the first bottle of Peruna was doing me good, and so I kept on using it with a gradual increase of appetite and strength. Three months after I first began using it I was a well man, and all the credit is due to Peruna. I recommend it to all who are in need of a medicine for catarrh."

Three Months Treatment Cured me of Catarrh the Stomach

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.
